Multi-Portfolio Optimization: A Potential Game Approach

Abstract
In modern asset management, portfolio managers address the multi-account investment decision problem by optimizing each account's portfolio separately based on the trading requirements and portfolio constraints of the individual clients. However, trades associated with the individual accounts are usually pooled together for execution, therefore amplifying the level of the so-called market impact on all accounts. ...