

Write a C++ program that takes three integer values and decides whether they can construct a triangle or not. If yes, it should print out the type of the triangle ( right, equilateral or isosceles).

Write a C++ program that takes one integer value that represents a month, and then prints out the number of days corresponding to that month.

Write a C++ program that asks the user to input a character, and then checks whether the entered character is an alphabet or not.